

The Magic Happens Here

By: Maree Hawkins

The Children's Department at the Modesto Library is a magical place that encourages young visitors to love books and the library. Everything is designed to welcome children and parents, help them discover a love of books and the joy of reading, and keep the library on a family list of "go to destinations."

The welcoming staff and the cheerful décor will put a smile on your face. Children naturally gravitate to Ryan's Reading Tree and make themselves comfortable on the kid-sized chairs, benches and cushions... and the floor, of course!

Large, lettered signs lead the way to picture books, non-fiction, beginning readers, and children's fiction series. Books are displayed on top of the cases, especially in the picture book area, to entice children and their parents to sit down at one of the many small tables and chairs to read. This Children's Department also offers puzzles, small toys, and even a play stove to engage children. If you happen to visit the room, you'll probably hear at least one child plead, "But I don't want to go home!"

It is a very lively place on many days, especially just before and after the Wiggle Worms story hour. I visited the Wiggle Worms story time and quickly learned that adults enjoy it as well. Storyteller Brian Lillie is singing and enthusiastically making arm and finger movements to go along with the song as the program gets under way. Forty to 50 people are in the auditorium: moms, dads, and grandparents along with the children. Most of the children have obviously attended before since they join in easily in songs and finger plays. Brian performs two books, several songs and finger plays, plus bubbles at the end. Repetition is important to learning, so many of the songs are sung twice. All have lots of movement. Most of the children are very participatory; others will sit and watch. Brian says whatever works for the child is perfect. "One day they'll be ready," he adds. The stories, songs, and rhymes help develop a young child's vocabulary, and rhythm activities increase motor skills. One parent shared that she felt her 3-year-old child was really learning how to listen and participate by attending story time.

The Modesto Library usually offers six story times each week (see descriptions), plus other children's activities such as clay model magic, dinosaurs, and prehistoric life. Each story time program is designed to help youngsters love books, learn vocabulary, and develop listening and motor skills.

FROM THE PRESIDENT

Some of my friends have commented that instead of “resolutions,” which can easily be broken or forgotten, they were setting new year “goals” this year instead. At the Friends of the Modesto Library board of directors meeting in December, I shared my personal goals for 2020 and encouraged my fellow board members to do the same. Here they are:

Friends of the Modesto Library New Year’s Resolutions

1. Invite 1 new business to join FOML
2. Invite 2 new members to join
3. Cultivate 1 new board member

4. Be alert to opportunities to speak publicly about FOML

Perhaps by saying them out loud and seeing them in print, I will be more apt to stick to these worthy goals. You, my friends, can help by reminding me about them when you see me. Here’s to a great 2020!

Also, plans are moving forward for the Friends annual membership meeting on March 4. It promises to be both interesting and informative. Modesto Bee reporter and pediatrician ChrisAnna Mink will be our guest and will speak about the importance of reading in treating trauma in children. Look for details inside. I hope to see you there!

On the day I visited, Children’s Librarian Christin Hutsell and volunteer Anne Britton were busy at the desk. Britton, a Friend of the Modesto Library board member, has volunteered several hours a week in the Children’s Department for the last 18 years. She is a retired librarian and says that helping out is a great way to get her “kid fix;” plus, she gets the latest book info to pass on to her three granddaughters.

Hutsell, a Children’s Librarian for three years, loves presenting story times and programs and says getting to read new children’s books is definitely a bonus. She adds that the most requested books from the younger set these days are books from two series: Dog Man and Wimpy Kid. Britton commented that in the last 10 years graphic novels have really emerged, with new books as well as older books being turned into graphic novels. She feels graphic novels are a good addition since children who don’t yet like to read will often be interested in a graphic novel.

A look ahead

Chris Moreno, Modesto Library Supervisor, says that, thanks to the Friends of the Modesto Library, new lounge chairs for the toddler area and new pre-school size stools and chairs will be purchased. A full-time Spanish Bilingual Library Assistant was hired in January. And staff will be prepping for the next big program on April 16: Día de los niños/día de los libros. Día connects children and families to diverse books, languages, and cultures and emphasizes the importance of literacy.

1000 BOOKS

The Library participates in the countywide 1000 Books Before Kindergarten program. In this program, parents pledge to read 1,000 books to their children before they enter kindergarten. The program currently has over 450 families signed up at the Modesto branch alone.

MEMBERSHIP UPDATE

New Year; Lots of New Members

That's the plan. But, first, let's get all our 2019 members renewed. I'm excited that 50 members have already paid dues for 2020! If you are one of them—thank you. If you are not, I hope you'll keep reading.

To renew your membership, go to our website (<https://modestolibraryfriends.org>) and select the tab JOIN US. Pay online with PayPal or choose "offline donation" to complete only the membership form online and then mail us a check. It's that easy to make a difference in your community.

If you prefer, you can complete the membership form in this newsletter and mail it with your check. Either way, you're doing a great thing. Thank you for your ongoing support.

WELCOME TO OUR NEWEST MEMBERS

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Jean Wallen Hannah by Jonaca and Bill Driscoll; Susan and Chad Hannah; Marie and George Bairey; Judy and Jay Pierce; Ellen and Mike Dambrosio; and R. J. Moriconi.

In memory of Diane Sutter by her book club.

Need a gift idea?

Not sure what to get a friend or family member for their birthday or other special occasion? How about a Friends of the Modesto Library membership? For as little as $25 you can show your loved ones they are important to you, while simultaneously growing the Friends' membership and coffers. With more Friends and more money, we can do more for our beloved library.

Ellen's Excellent Instructions

Friends of the Modesto Library is enrolled in three fundraising programs, also known as affinity programs. Each generates money for the Friends when you make a purchase from a participating store. More participants equals more money for the Friends. For details about how to sign up or get involved in all our fundraising activities, go to <https://modestolibraryfriends.org/fundraising-projects/>.

Allow me to highlight one program this month –

Shop at any of 2,400 online stores. It's fast and automatic with the iGive Button, the iPhone/iPad or Android app, or simply using their site to visit stores. You never pay more. And iGive always show you how much you're raising before you make your purchase.

Just about anything you buy counts. Donations range from .5% (e.g. computers) to over 20%, varying by store. A typical shopper raises over $100/year.

Mark your calendar for the Friends' Annual Meeting

The Friends of the Modesto Library general membership meeting will take place at 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, March 4 in the library auditorium. Our guest speaker will be Dr. ChrisAnna Mink, the child health reporter at The Modesto Bee. For the previous two decades, she was a practicing pediatrician at Harbor-UCLA Medical Center in south Los Angeles County, primarily caring for an underserved population.

Dr. ChrisAnna Mink

In caring for the disadvantaged children, she started writing about their health, social and educational needs. In 2015, she left full-time medicine to pursue a master's degree in journalism at the USC Annenberg School of Communication and Journalism to enhance her writing skills for the public. She joined The Modesto Bee in June 2019 as part of the Report for America Corps.

In her talk, "Reading Helps Children Cope with Stress," Dr. Mink will discuss recent research about dealing with adverse childhood experiences, ACEs, including the role of reading.

Muggles and Wizards Gather for Annual Yule Ball

The annual Hogwarts Yule Ball has become a favorite library event for Harry Potter fans. This year, Friends members including board vice president Pat Glattke volunteered to help behind the scenes. Pat shared her experiences with us.

Children's Librarian Amber O'Brien-VerHulst invited FOML members to help at the Yule Ball, working alongside a large number of staff and volunteers to put on this major event. Friends of the Modesto Library board members Beverly Schlegel, Ellen Dambrosio and I were eager to participate. First, Amber escorted us into the costume area where we were given choices on our costumes. We chose to be the Potion Masters (although we were much more kind than Professor Snape!).

As soon as the Library closed at 5 p.m., we gathered up all of the various decorations and proceeded to decorate the main area of the Library (blocking off the stacks to keep all wee ones in check) and the Children's Section. It had the same majesty as the Great Hall itself.

Our area for “potions” started with a cauldron of foaming dry ice. Participants picked up a small tube of bubble juice, stopped for various glitters of their choosing, went on to more filler and then added a yarn necklace so they could blow tiny bubbles as they continued on their exploration of all things Hogwarts.

The sorting hat decided which house the parents and the children would belong to: Gryffindor, Slytherin, Ravenclaw or Hufflepuff. Many attendees had full regalia for their chosen roles. They were treated to pizza thanks to Round Table's Lincoln School location.

The night was filled with magic; plan on it for next year! – Pat Glattke, Vice President

Library Honored for its Recycling Efforts

Each year the city of Modesto honors local businesses, schools and organizations for their waste reduction efforts, innovations in recycling and ongoing commitment to make their businesses green and sustainable. Stanislaus County Library was recognized among Large Businesses (over 100 employees). "It's wonderful to be recognized!" said Library Director Sarah Dentan. "Re-use is central to the library's business model – individual books are read by scores of readers, and it's not unusual for popular DVDs to circulate 150 times or more. It only makes sense to repurpose and recycle materials once we're done with them." In part, the commendation reads, "Behind the scenes, library staff recycle large amounts of cardboard weekly. When books are removed from the library's collections, they are sold in a used book sale. Books that are beyond repair are recycled, as well as plastic and aluminum. In addition, with grant funding from Modesto and Turlock irrigation districts, they purchased energy meters that can be checked out by library customers to learn about their own energy usage and how best to save on their energy costs."

Library Staff Pick Their "Top Ten of the Past Ten"

When the idea for a "Staff Picks from the '10s" list was brought up during a Library Social Media Committee meeting, Ceres librarian Megan Mizuno volunteered to spearhead the project, and reached out to all library staff via email asking for people to send their favorite books of the last decade. Responses came from branches and departments across the county library system and resulted in a list of over fifty books.

Staff favorites included fiction and nonfiction titles encompassing a wide variety of genres and topics. "It was really fun and interesting to see all the different responses, and I'm happy that so many staff members were excited to share their top picks. It is quite a well-rounded list!" Megan said about her involvement in compiling the list.

Some popular titles given by multiple staff members include: All the Light We Cannot See by Anthony Doerr; Becoming by Michelle Obama; Educated by Tara Westover; Eleanor & Park by Rainbow Rowell; Ready Player One by Ernest Cline; Scythe by Neal Shusterman; and Unbroken: A World War II Story of Survival, Resilience, and Redemption by Laura Hillenbrand. The complete list can be found on the Stanislaus County Library Facebook and Instagram accounts.

New Chromebooks

The library has acquired 52 Chromebooks for in-library use by library customers. Most of the computers were provided by grants and will help address the need for more computers, which are in high demand at all libraries. The Chromebooks were rolled out in Modesto in December and will soon be available at all branches. Modesto customers may check them out at the service desk. Like all library information and materials, they may be borrowed free of charge.

Help Wanted: Photographer

Do you love the library? OK, sorry, that was a trick question. We ALL love the library! Are you a skilled or improving photographer? We need a volunteer events photographer – someone who can be assigned to take pictures at FOML events and FOML-sponsored library programs so we can tell a visual story of all the things we do to support the library. Interested? Give us a ring at (209) 765-6388.

All Things Jane... The End

If you haven't seen, heard or experienced Jane Austen in the last few months, you must have had your head buried in a book by a different author. It seems the whole town boarded the Jane Train, and the Friends of the Modesto Library had seats right up front!

Our Barnes & Noble fundraiser (a $1,000 success!) had a Jane Austen theme, with costumed guests and musical interludes by Opera Modesto singers. The Friends sponsored Jane Austen Escape Rooms at the library in November and "Happy Birthday, Jane!" in December. Our big event was "All Things Jane" on Jan. 3 which featured a panel discussion with the library staff's own Janeophiles, Michele Machado and Laura Ferrell, a spirited game of "Marry, Date, or Dump" and a preview of Modesto Opera's Story Into Song performance of "Mansfield Park."

With the help of many community partners, Opera Modesto produced two days of talks and workshops in addition to two performances of the opera 'Mansfield Park.' The company also held free performances for schools, home schools and adult students. "Just judging by the smiles and enthusiasm I saw in every session, JaneCon was a success," said event Co-chair Hillari DeSchane, an Opera Modesto board member.

Opera Modesto's Story Into Song Literacy Initiative is intended to provide educators with an additional tool for encouraging students of all ages to engage with great works of literature by presenting opera versions. Next season's offerings are opera versions of Cervantes' "Don Quixote de La Mancha" and Anaya's "Bless Me, Ultima."
